I am pleased to provide you with this year’s Loyola University Chicago President’s Report. In August, we welcomed 2,076 freshmen, 590 transfer students, and 1,716 graduate and professional students to campus. Our total enrollment stands at a new record of 15,879, a 26 percent increase from 2000. As undergraduate enrollment has reached capacity, we are focusing on maintaining these strong enrollments while improving the academic quality and the diversity of our incoming classes.

While enrollment remains strong, we are faced with the on-going challenge of keeping tuition affordable and our programs accessible. This is particularly challenging in a difficult economy, when many of our students and families are struggling. In fiscal year 2009, the University awarded $108 million in scholarships and grants. Approximately 92 percent of this aid was funded internally by the University, with the other 8 percent coming from gifts, grants, and endowments. Ninety-four percent of our undergraduate students received some type of financial aid this year. The best way to ensure our ability to provide all students with an affordable education is to grow our endowment resources with the help of philanthropic support.

Just over a year ago, on September 20, 2008, Loyola announced its most ambitious fundraising undertaking ever—Partner: The Campaign for the Future of Loyola—with a campaign goal of $500 million. With the recent $50 million gift from John and Herta Cuneo and the Cuneo Foundation—the largest gift in the University’s history—overall campaign progress has increased from $270 million at the official announcement of the campaign to more than $400 million. Although the campaign still has far to go, the gifts Loyola has already received will provide much-needed scholarship support, as well as additional faculty programming, funds for research, and new and improved facilities. In fiscal year 2009, contributions and foundation grants to Loyola University Chicago and Loyola University Health System totaled $47.6 million, our second highest year ever (the 2008 total was only slightly higher at $48 million). We are grateful indeed that in a year filled with economic stress and uncertainty, Loyola’s alumni, friends and benefactors continued to support the University with unprecedented generosity.

Donor gifts and strong financial management have allowed the University to make the capital improvements necessary to revitalize our campuses and plan for our future. Key improvements this fiscal year include the completion of the East Quad and the continued renovation of Mundelein Center on the Lake Shore Campus. On the Water Tower Campus, the University has continued the renovation of the School of Law, thanks in large part to alumnus Phil Corboy (JD ’49) and his wife, Mary Dempsey, who made a leadership gift to the newly-named Philip H. Corboy Law Center (the largest single gift in the law school’s history). In addition, on July 1, the University purchased the John Felice Rome Center property in Rome, Italy, allowing the University to make necessary renovations and improvements to the center and to enhance our long-standing international presence in Rome. This summer, the University also broke ground on the new Intercollegiate Athletic Center on the Lake Shore Campus. The $26 million state-of-the-art structure will house a new strength and conditioning center, a rehab facility, modern home and away locker rooms, and athletic department administrative offices. The new building demonstrates Loyola’s commitment to its varsity athletic programs by enhancing our ability to attract top athletes and coaches.

The financial outlook for the University remains strong and healthy. During fiscal year 2009, the University continued its recent trend of consistently favorable operating performance and generated an operating surplus of $47 million. This was driven primarily by higher revenues from enrollment growth and conservative fiscal policies such as funding of depreciation and lower endowment spending rates. As in the past, the surplus will be reinvested in the University, and in particular this year, it will be used to increase the reserves we have set aside for future debt repayments, finance various capital projects, and fund the fiscal year 2010 endowment draw for the lakeside campuses.

As with many other universities, Loyola’s endowment was significantly affected by the global economic crisis and market declines. The endowment rate of return was a negative 26.9 percent, resulting in an endowment fund value of $278.9 million compared to $372.5 million in the previous year. These investment losses more than offset our strong operating performance and led to a decrease in net assets of $92 million for fiscal year ending June 30, 2009. Fortunately, the University does not rely heavily on endowment draws for its operations: the endowment fund contributes only approximately 2 percent (or $10 million) to the University’s yearly operating budget. As a result, the University was able to avoid the layoffs and budget cuts that took place at other universities dependent upon endowment draws to fund operations. The University’s endowment fund is still in a position to maintain the strategy of providing a stable source of funding for academic programs, financial aid, and faculty support over a long-term time horizon. The funding of the fiscal year 2010 endowment draw from the prior year’s operating surplus will enable the endowment to grow back more rapidly and increase its ability to fund programs in the future.

The Loyola University Health System (LUHS) experienced financial difficulty in fiscal year 2009 that resulted in a substantial workforce reduction and an operating loss of $42 million. However, LUHS’s financial performance and outlook has improved recently. In September, Moody’s revised LUHS’s current bond rating (Baa3) outlook from negative to stable. This was a result of increased oversight by the University, improvement initiatives led by a new management team, and an increase in unrestricted cash levels. During fiscal year 2009, the University demonstrated its commitment to LUHS in part by providing cash transfers and loans to bolster liquidity. In December 2008, the University transferred approximately $19 million in cash to LUHS to ensure bank covenants were met (LUHS subsequently repaid the University), and in June 2009, the University permanently transferred $11.7 million to LUHS representing a return of academic support. Recent changes to the LUHS by-laws allow for greater communication and collaboration between the University and Health System to the benefit of all our students, faculty, and employees. LUHS is implementing initiatives to improve margins, stabilize volumes, and grow revenue and anticipates that fiscal year 2010 will be slightly above break-even. As a result of the changes at LUHS, Moody’s also revised the University’s current bond rating (A3) outlook from negative to stable, and the University remains firmly committed to helping LUHS achieve their goals.

The continued financial health and success of the University is strengthened by the generosity of our many supporters—faithful alumni, faculty, staff, students, parents, and friends of Loyola, including our corporate and foundation partners. We appreciate your partnership as we prepare people to lead extraordinary lives. We look forward to seeing you at events throughout the year and wish you and your family a blessed Christmas season.

Sincerely,

Michael J. Garanzini, S.J. President

Born in 1506, Peter Faber grew up as a shepherd in the French Alps. He was held in high esteem by his peers for his profound knowledge and gentle sanctity and was the first of the companions to be ordained a priest. He was known as a great listener and counselor, and he became an effective preacher and giver of the “Jesuit Spiritual Exercises.”

Arnold Damen, S.J. (1815-1890), for whom the Damen Society is named, helped establish Holy Family Church, Chicago’s first Jesuit parish. His vision of a church, school, and college on the city’s Near West Side led to St. Ignatius College, the predecessor to Loyola University Chicago. The Damen Society recognizes alumni and friends who support Loyola with gifts of $1,000 or more.

University Faculty and Staff Donors

While the focus of the “Partner” campaign is on encouraging support from alumni and friends, the gifts given by Loyola’s front-line ambassadors—faculty and staff—are also extremely important. These gifts show that Loyola’s employees believe in the University’s mission and are committed to its future.

“The newly named Donovan Reading Room will not only be a place where so many of our students can do serious work, but it also will be a center of campus activity that celebrates both the academic and community values of Loyola University Chicago.”

— ROBERT SEAL, DEAN OF UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

Last summer, family and friends gathered in the newly christened Donovan Reading Room to pay tribute to its benefactor, the late Willouise “Willie” Donovan. Upon her death in 2007, Donovan bequeathed a seven-figure sum to Loyola that included her family home, and the Cudahy Library’s reading room now bears her name. A librarian and school teacher, Donovan’s devotion to the written word will benefit for years to come those Loyola students who study in the elegant, warm, and inviting reading room of the Cudahy Library.
The Society of the Shield honors Loyola alumni and friends who have remembered thoughtfully Loyola in their estate plans and/or have made a deferred gift to the University. Through their generosity and vision, they have strengthened Loyola’s legacy by investing in the future of Jesuit higher education.
