Share your passion. Become a mentor.

Science Explorers is hiring recent college graduates to mentor small groups of Chicago Public School 9th grade students and provide them with critical academic support in their first year of high school, particularly with Freshmen Biology. These full-time paid positions, called Science Education Fellows, are based in the community and are an opportunity for passionate people to make a difference in our local school system.

Learn more about the Science Explorers program and the Science Education Fellows at scienceexplorers.org.

APPLICATIONS ARE DUE APRIL 29, 2016.

Science Explorers is an initiative of Society in Society, a Northwestern University research center dedicated to science education and community engagement. Visit us at scienceinsociety.northwestern.edu. Contact Julianne Hatfield, PhD (j-hatfield@northwestern.edu) with any questions.