Awards for students in Environmental Sciences

Udall Scholarship: for enrolled sophomores and juniors who are interested in pursuing a career in the environment, including policymaking. Loyola can nominate up to six students; contact the Fellowship Office for information on the campus process. Campus deadline is in the spring semester; institutional deadline is March 1.

www.udall.gov

EPA-GRO: Sophomores can apply for the Environmental Protection Agency’s Greater Research Opportunities (GRO) program, which provides a total of $50,000 over a two-year period, covering the junior and senior years, in addition to a paid internship with the EPA during the summer between the junior and senior year. Deadlines vary; the most recent competition details can be found here.

http://www.epa.gov/ncer/rfa/2015/2015_gro_undergrad.html#Synopsis

Hollings Scholarship: The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration provides the Hollings Scholarship to undergraduate students. Sophomores can apply for this program that provides two years of funding at $8000 per year, in addition to a paid internship during the summer between the junior and senior years. The online application opens in September; deadline is in January.

http://www.oesd.noaa.gov/scholarships/hollings.html

SEEDS: The Ecological Society of America’s Strategies for Ecology Education, Diversity and Sustainability offers an Undergraduate Research Fellowship. Undergraduates who will not complete the Bachelor’s degree in spring 2014 can apply for the award, which includes a $6000 stipend, $3000 for summer research expenses, and all travel costs to ESA meetings covered. The online application opens in late summer; deadline is late December.

http://www.esa.org/seeds

EPA-STAR: Students applying to graduate school, including graduating seniors and undergraduate alumni, can apply for the Environmental Protection Agency’s Science to Achieve Results (STAR) program, which provides $42,000 annually for up to two years of funding for Master’s students and three years of funding for doctoral students. Deadlines vary; the most recent competition details can be found here.

For more information, please visit the Fellowship Office website:

http://www.luc.edu/fellowshipoffice