I. Topic: Formal definition and topology of Loyola faculty.

II. Discussion

The definitions developed will need to support reporting and research needs.

Faculty typology can be tenure eligible (tenured or tenure-track) or non-tenure eligible. Faculty roles can be divided into regular and contingent with the contingent sub-categorized into research, instructional, and librarian.

There are administrative faculty types such as the president, provost, and deans. Depending on the research or reporting being done they may or may not be counted as faculty. A staff member who is credentialed with tenured status would be considered to be faculty.

The categorization of librarians needs further research.

How faculty located at our foreign campuses are portrayed in reporting and research needs further research.

An SSOM Administrator is equivalent to a department chair.

SSOM and School of Nursing must be included in a university definition. A list of questions needs to be submitted to the Medical Center regarding this data.

III. Next Step

Examine faculty data within the Lawson and FIS systems.

Institutional Research will provide definitions used to satisfy external reporting requirements.
