Student Organization Member Engagement

Great Organizations Consist of Great Teams

1. Community is key to engagement
   Be intentional about creating consistent opportunities for your group to engage each other. Facilitate retreats and team building activities for members to create community and build deeper connections.

2. Set organizational goals and individual expectations
   Each member has a specific role to play to ensure your organization’s success. Set organization and individual goals and create systems and checkpoints to track progress. Always remember to give recognition and show appreciation when goals are reached.

3. Provide space for everyone to contribute
   Exercise autonomy, encourage creativity, and give group members leeway in how they choose to complete a tasks or project.

4. Offer training and professional development opportunities
   Don’t let your team stagnate. To keep them motivated, give group members new responsibilities that challenge them. When used properly, this strategy can help prepare group members for more challenging positions.

Student Leadership Development | Loyola University Chicago