Polish 102 – Elementary Polish

June 30 – August 8, 2014 - MTW 8:20 – 10:30

Cuneo Hall 318

Lecturer: Erik Houle

This course focuses on improving the student's ability to communicate in Polish both oral and written. Primary emphasis is on speaking and basic writing in Polish using proper grammatical and stylistic structures. The course will review the fundamentals of Polish pronunciation and speaking with an introduction to the grammatical cases and the verb system. Previous knowledge of Polish (POLS 101) is recommended but not required.

Course objective: Students will be able to express themselves in spoken and written Polish with the level of fluency appropriate for Intermediate Polish (POLS 103). This course satisfies both Loyola's language requirement and one course toward the Minor in Polish Studies. For more information, please visit our website www.luc.edu/polishstudies or email Bożena Nowicka McLees, Director of Interdisciplinary Polish Studies, at bmclees@luc.edu or Erik Houle, Lecturer of Polish, at ehoule@luc.edu .
