HIGHLIGHTS

Learn medical terminology in advanced French, in areas from family practice to oncology. Gain confidence in obtaining the important details patients need to share. Derive a greater appreciation for patient-doctor relationships, especially for Francophone immigrants assimilating in Québec.

Explore and immerse yourself in the French-speaking medical and health communities of Québec. Learn from the experts. Compare the U.S. and Québec health care systems. Discover firsthand Québec’s treasure trove of art and historical architecture.

Transform your personal social justice mission. Prepare to serve Francophones via NGOs or in hospitals, in Chicago or abroad. Ideal for careers in medicine or mental health, natural or human sciences, research, health management or not-for-profit administration.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION:
100% immersion in French. From time with the host families, faculty and health professionals, to time with student “moniteurs” during excursions, you will refine your conversational and professional French, in the industry you have chosen to be your career. Arrive by noon on July 1, and meet your host family. That night, join your classmates for a relaxing dinner in Montréal, followed by time with your host family. Academic venues include morning classes for instruction on different areas of medicine each day, afternoon seminars with health professionals, and weekly shadowing of French-speaking physicians in clinics or hospitals. Interaction with locals and trips to the Montréal Jazz Festival, charming Québec City, museums and other historic sites, will enhance your experience of our French-speaking neighbors to the North.

COURSE TITLE:
FREN 300: Independent Study in French (French for the Health Sector)

CREDIT HOURS EARNED:
Two French 300 electives for a total of six credits

COURSE PRE-REQUISITE:
French 270 or 271 for advanced level (B2)
French 250 AND 251 or equivalency for intermediate level (B1)

COURSE INSTRUCTOR:
Lisa Erceg, Senior Lecturer
French Undergraduate Program Director
Modern Languages and Literatures
McGill University faculty

COURSE DESCRIPTION:
This is for students who have completed either French 270 or 271, or who have a B2 level of French. Daily instruction and practice of French for the health industry takes place Monday to Thursday mornings, with seminars conducted by health professionals in the afternoons. Fridays will find you shadowing a physician in a clinic or hospital that serves the French-speaking public. You will create a digital storytelling e-Portfolio full of images on Task Stream to document your experiences in academics, cultural immersion, and to express your refined mission statement. This course is primarily led by faculty and undergraduate or graduate students of McGill University's medical school.
