Laudato Si'*: Protecting Our Common Home, Building Our Common Church

---

The University of San Diego
February 22-23, 2024

Welcome

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

Welcome to San Diego! We are delighted to hold this year's gathering of church leaders on the West Coast, and we are greatly looking forward to important discussions about Pope Francis' landmark encyclical Laudato Si'.

We want to thank the Frances G. Harpst Center for Catholic Thought and Culture, the Franciscan School of Theology, and the University of San Diego for welcoming this gathering to their beautiful campus and extending countless assistance and courtesies to us. We also wish to thank the Bishop of San Diego, Cardinal Robert McElroy, for his help in making this gathering possible.

This year we have adopted some significant changes to the format, hoping to increase the time allowed for discussion. We have brought together a variety of speakers to help direct our thoughts to the vital issues raised by Laudato Si' and, with prayer and hospitality, we again hope to provide a forum where we can all discern the way forward for the Church we love.

The Boisi CENTER for RELIGION and AMERICAN PUBLIC LIFE

The Boisi Center for Religion and American Public Life was created at Boston College in 1999 with an endowment from Geoffrey T. Boisi '69 and his wife Rene (Isacco) Boisi '69. From the outset its mission has been to create opportunities where a community of scholars, policymakers, media, and religious leaders can connect in conversation and scholarly reflection around issues at the intersection of religion and American public life. Our hope is that such conversations can clarify the moral consequences of public policies in ways that help to maintain the common good while respecting America's increasing religious diversity.

The mission of the Boisi Center commits it to fostering rigorous, civil, and constructive conversations about religion in American public life, in pursuit of the common good of a religiously diverse society. We bring exceptional scholarship into dialogue with engaged citizenship and the creative arts, in order to produce meaningful exchanges that inform, challenge, and inspire. In doing this we support Boston College's Jesuit and Catholic commitment to education that shapes minds and souls alike for service to others.

We feel that in the current social and political climate this work is more important than ever, and we invite you to join us.

The Joan and Bill Hank Center
CCIH
for the Catholic Intellectual Heritage

---

Founded in 2006, the Joan and Bill Hank Center for the Catholic Intellectual Heritage (CCIH) serves as venue for LUC faculty, students, and staff to learn about and investigate Roman Catholic thought and its links to all academic disciplines. With its strong emphasis on scholarly research and discussion, CCIH is a productive space where the fruits of that research can be engaged, debated, and shared. CCIH also has a larger footprint—locally, nationally, and internationally— and conducts numerous programs, conferences, and symposia that cultivate reflective experiences of:

- Connecting to Catholic Thought
- Researching Catholic Thought
- Communicating Catholic Thought

On April 24, 2007, Loyola University Chicago renamed this Center of Excellence in honor of two generous friends and benefactors—Joan Los (BS'54) and Bill Hank.

The Joan and Bill Hank Center for the Catholic Intellectual Heritage stewards the Jesuit principle of finding God in all things, which is at the core of the mission of Loyola University Chicago. At the Center, the rich and variant lines of the Catholic intellectual tradition are explored, communicated, and renewed.

FORDHAM | CENTER ON RELIGION & CULTURE

At a time when religion's role in American life is both praised and contested, Fordham's Center on Religion and Culture (CRC) explores the complex relationship between faith and contemporary life.

Through public events and conversations with experts and artists, scholars and faith leaders, the CRC seeks to engage and elevate the public dialogue about religion and culture, the mind and the soul, inclusion and identity, politics, and the arts.

The Fordham Center on Religion and Culture was founded in 2004 by journalists Peter Steinfels and Margaret O'Brien Steinfels. James P. McCartin, a historian of American Catholicism at Fordham, succeeded them as director in 2011. The current director is David Gibson, a veteran journalist and author, who joined the CRC in 2017.

CENTER FOR CATHOLIC STUDIES
Sacred Heart University
College of Arts & Sciences

The Center for Catholic Studies at Sacred Heart University promotes innovative programming, teaching and scholarship that demonstrate the University's mission. That mission is rooted in the Catholic intellectual tradition and inspired by Vatican II as a living, global reality, relevant to the world in which we live. The Center is committed to the study and discussion of Catholic intellectual, social, cultural and artistic thought. Our collaboration with other Catholic universities and colleges in developing distinctively Catholic contributions to higher education is also at the forefront of our work.

The Center hosts several lecture series, including the Heart Challenges Hate series and the Bergoglio Lectures, which bring the Catholic intellectual tradition into dialogue with contemporary issues and concerns. The Center's other programming, from colloquia to webinars, highlight recent events on the life of the Church, cultivate interreligious and interdisciplinary dialogue, and reach out to the local church and community.
