Guide to Graduate Programs in Forensic and Legal Psychology

The Guide to Graduate Programs in Forensic and Legal Psychology, now in its 6th edition, seeks to provide a comprehensive resource for prospective students interested in furthering their graduate training and education in psychology and law. Current graduate programs in forensic psychology and legal psychology are listed alphabetically by degree type: doctoral programs (Ph.D. and Psy.D.), joint programs (Ph.D./J.D., Psy.D./J.D., J.D./M.A., Ph.D./M.L.S.), and masters-level programs. Each program is then described using the same categories, including sections on department information, student applications/admissions, financial information/assistance, research, internship/practica, employment of department graduates, and any other additional information available. All information (or lack thereof) was reported by the school themselves and was not gleaned by the originators of this guide from publically available sources.

The 1st edition of this guide was produced by Dr. Garret Berman and students. The 2nd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Betsy Aderhold and Jenna Boulas, at Creighton University. The 3rd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Jared Ruchensky. The 4th edition was revised by Dr. Apryl Alexander, with assistance from students. The 5th edition was revised by Jessica Hart and Katherine Hazen. Previous members of the Teaching, Training, and Careers (TTC) Committee of the American Psychology-Law Society (AP-LS) also gave valuable feedback on an earlier version.

The current iteration of this guide was updated and revised between summer 2022 and spring 2023 as part of an ongoing initiative of the AP-LS TTC Committee. Most credit is due to Cassidy Haigh (TTC Student Member), who completed this revision in collaboration with Casey LaDuke (TTC Chair) and Danielle Rynczak (TTC Chair-Elect).

Any questions, edits regarding the guide itself, or any schools that would like to be included in the guide can email the TTC Committee at ttc@ap-ls.org.

PH.D. PROGRAMS

Arizona State University

Ph.D. program in Law and Psychology

Arizona State University

Phoenix, AZ 85069

Director of Program: Nick Schweitzer, Ph.D.

Email: njs@asu.edu

Program website: <http://lawpsych.asu.edu>

Programs & Degrees Offered: Ph.D. Program in Law and Psychology Concurrent enrollment with J.D. possible, but not formalized	APA Accredited: N/A
Department Information: This program is housed in ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences – one of four units at ASU that offer psychology programs. Program faculty are a part of ASU's Law and Behavioral Science group, consisting of 16 faculty and over 1900 students who work at the intersection of law and psychology. Students may choose their mentor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) The program consists of 84 credits (30 research credits and 54 coursework credits) that can be completed in 5-6 years. A thesis, comprehensive exam, and dissertation are required. Students entering with a MA/MS may have the thesis and up to 30 credits waived.	Tuition: Ph.D. students are eligible for full tuition remission with a TA/RA position. Financial Assistance: TA/RA positions are available and include stipend, health insurance, and full tuition remission. Average stipend is $21,000 for 9 months, plus optional summer funding. This program will not admit a student unless we expect to be able to provide 4-5 years of funding.
Student Applications: Applications received each year: 45-65 Offers extended each year: 2-4 Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, GRE-General scores, three letters of recommendation, a personal statement, and an optional CV/resume. There are no minimum admission criteria and we examine applications holistically. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 3.5+, GRE General (V+Q) scores of 320+, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for doctoral study in their personal statement.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research at the intersection of law and psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Practica: No internships are required. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a new program; no graduation data are available. Additional Information: It is possible to concurrently enroll with the JD program at ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law. Students need to independently apply and be admitted to both programs. Students doing this can double-count 12 credits of elective coursework toward both degrees.

Programs & Degrees Offered: PhD in Clinical Psychology with an emphasis in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: Yes
Department Information: The PhD Program in Clinical Psychology adheres to the scientist-practitioner model and was started in 2017. The department has over 30 full-time faculty, including 9 core program faculty and 6 associated faculty (2 of these core faculty members are clinical forensic psychologists, and 2 associated faculty members are experimental forensic psychologists). The program requires 86 credits to graduate. Students are required to pass a comprehensive exam and complete a second-year research project, doctoral dissertation, and pre-doctoral internship. The forensic psychology emphasis requires completion of four courses, including forensic assessment and psychological science and law, as well as a practicum in a forensic setting. The program only enrolls full-time students. Graduating students are eligible for licensure.	Tuition: Overall cost for completion: 0; the program is fully funded. Financial Assistance: The program offers opportunities for full funding, including stipends and tuition waivers, through research fellowships, teaching assistantships, grants, and clinical training.
Student Applications: Last year, the program received 195 applications and admitted 18 students (yielding a cohort of 10). Typically, 25% of students opt for the forensic emphasis. Admissions Requirements: Recommended Scores: GPA: $\geq 3.2-3.5$, GRE Quantitative: ≥ 50th percentile, GRE Verbal: ≥ 50th percentile. Other criteria: Number of recommendations: 3; GRE Subject Test is optional; personal statement; writing sample; program accepts students who have already received their master's degree Applicants are evaluated on grades, GRE scores, previous research and clinical experience, writing, and fit with program faculty and required training. Students may be accepted on merit if scores fall below recommended minimums.	Research: The program equally emphasizes developing students' research and clinical skills. All students publish and present their research at conferences. Internship/Pratica: Students are required to complete 3 years of practicum and a year-long, full-time predoctoral internship. Employment of Department Graduates: No graduates to date Additional Information: Program faculty are theoretically eclectic, with perspectives that include cognitive-behavioral and integrative approaches, among others. Special attention is paid to youth, families, and child development. Clinical and forensic training occurs in New Jersey and New York with diverse populations, in settings that include family services and child protection, forensic mental health, and corrections.

Programs & Degrees Offered: PhD Forensic Psychology *Direct Entry PhD in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: No
Department Information: This program is housed in Ontario Tech University’s Faculty of Social Science and Humanities. Number of full-time faculty: 8. The PhD in Forensic Psychology combines disciplinary and specialized study in Forensic Psychology, study in research methods and statistics, and applied learning experiences to prepare students to work in a variety of settings. Students may choose their supervisor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) The program consists of 55 credits (40 research credits and 15 coursework credits) that can be completed in 4-5 years. A candidacy exam, comprehensive exam, and thesis are required.	Tuition: Full-time graduate tuition per year is $ $7,579.30 CAD (Canadian Domestic) or $19,166.00 CAD (International) Financial Assistance: Minimum funding of $18,000 CAD per year is guaranteed for 4 years. Minimum funding may be achieved through any one or more of, but is not limited to, the following: graduate research assistantships, teaching assistantships and/or research assistantships. Additional scholarships are available for domestic and international applicants.
Student Applications: On average receive 8 to 10 applications each year. 2-3 applicants are accepted each year. Program only enrolls full-time students. Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, three letters of recommendation, a statement of academic intent, and a CV/resume. There is a minimum GPA requirement of 3.7. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 4.0+, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for doctoral study in their personal statement. *Each year, a small number of undergraduate students may be admitted directly into the PhD program without a master’s degree. This direct-entry option is for undergraduate students with exceptional academic performance throughout their bachelor’s degree.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research in Forensic psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Pratica: No internships are required, although students may choose to complete a practicum as part of their course requirements. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a new program; no graduation data are available.

Programs & Degrees Offered: Master’s in Clinical Psychology with concentration in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: N/A
Department Information: The psychology department has 30+ full time faculty members and several full-time instructional staff and clinical specialists. There are four faculty members with psychology and law foci (three of whom are licensed clinical psychologists), some of whom are closely affiliated with two psychologists in other departments who are engaged in psychology–law research. The MA program requires 36 credits of course work and a year-long clinical externship or clinically relevant research externship. The program enrolls full- and part-time students and admits students only for the fall term.	Tuition: For 2021–2022, $721.52 per credit hour for both New Jersey residents and non-state residents. Financial Assistance: Each year the program offers a few graduate assistantships and teaching assistantships to especially qualified applicants who express interest in being considered for these opportunities as part of their applications.
Student Applications: During the most recent application cycle, the forensic concentration received 105 applications and made 33 offers of admission. Applications for priority consideration are due in mid-March; applications completed after the priority deadline are reviewed on a rolling basis until the program is full. Admissions Requirements: Bachelor’s degree in psychology (or at least 12 credits in psychology or a closely related field at the undergraduate level, with one course each in research methods and statistics); GRE General Test; CV; personal statement; and two letters of recommendation. The recommended minimum GPA is 3.0 and the recommended minimum GRE scores are those at the 21st percentile. The GRE Subject Test is not required. The program takes a holistic approach to application review, considering undergraduate major and grades, GRE scores, prior research and clinically relevant experience, and fit with program faculty and required training.	Research: A thesis is not required but students are encouraged to join a research lab. In addition, students may complete a clinically relevant research experience to satisfy the externship component of their training. Internship/Pratica: Students must complete a year-long, part-time (450 hours) clinical externship or clinically relevant research externship. Externships are typically completed in New Jersey or New York, involve work with diverse populations, and occur in settings that include family services and child protection, forensic mental health, and corrections. Employment of Department Graduates: The program has not formally collected these data. Additional Information: Program faculty are theoretically eclectic, with perspectives that include cognitive-behavioral, psychodynamic, and integrative approaches, among others.
