Hello Sociologists,

Welcome, welcome, welcome to our fall 2017 department newsletter. We are always looking for new ways to reconnect and share with Loyola alumni and current department members. If you have any new news, old news, or just any news that you’d like to share, please send it to us. Please also feel free to share any pictures you have with us—we would love to “see” as well as “hear” from you.

As you will see in this newsletter our department is thriving and great things are afoot. Meet our newest faculty member. Discover what our students and faculty have been up to since this past spring and summer.

In addition to receiving your news items, we look forward to hearing comments about the newsletter or your suggestions for features and articles you might like to see. In the meantime, here’s to another great semester at Loyola and in the Department of Sociology.

Prepared people to lead extraordinary lives
Greetings from the 4th floor of Coffey Hall. The 2017-2018 academic year is well underway and it is already midterm time.

In the Department, there were a few personnel changes. Cristian Paredes joined us this year as an Assistant Professor. He recently earned his Ph.D. at the University of Texas at Austin and his areas of expertise are in race and ethnicity, immigration, Latin American and cultural sociology. Elise Martel Cohen is now in the department on a multi-year lecturer position. She has a Ph.D. from University of Illinois at Chicago and her areas of expertise are in work and occupations, economic sociology, the sociology of religion, identity, race, ethnicity and gender with a special emphasis on minorities in Turkey. We did say goodbye to Kathleen Dunn who taught in the department for 4 years. Kathleen recently began a new position in California.

In academic news, our faculty and students have been very busy. Our department was well represented at the Annual Meetings of the American Sociological Association and related associations (Society for the Study of Social Problems, Association for the Sociology of Religion, Sociologists for Women in Society, Study for the Symbolic Interactionism in Society) held in Montreal in mid-August.

With the help of the web and social media we are trying to communicate better with you. Find out more news and information about the department at our web site: https://www.luc.edu/sociology/index.shtml or “Like” us at our Facebook page at https://www.facebook.com/LUCsociology. The Facebook page is being used to communicate interesting articles related to Sociology and Loyola and to announce books, articles and prizes by faculty and students. This newsletter is another way to communicate. In this newsletter, you will read about many of these accomplishments of our faculty, students and alumni. There is much to be proud of and more to be done. Together (as faculty, staff and students) we are the Department of Sociology at Loyola University Chicago.

Our newest faculty member. . . Welcome!

Cristian Paredes

Cristian L. Paredes received his Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of Texas at Austin. His research agenda reflects a broad interest in ethnic and racial issues, immigration, and culture in Latin America and the U.S. In recent studies, Cristian proposes a multidimensional approach that connects the meaning of mestizaje as ethnoracial mixture—its everyday meaning in Spanish—with the U.S. sociological literature on multidimensionality of race for the analysis of ethnic and racial issues in Latin America. In addition, Cristian uses sociocultural perspectives for the analysis of immigration issues in U.S. metropolitan areas. In recent studies, he examines the consumption of out-of-home highbrow leisure by ethnicity and national origin, and the impact of multicultural environments on tolerance toward immigrants in Houston, Texas. Cristian believes that the production and dissemination of knowledge is a necessary task in the pursuit of social justice. Knowledge can empower disadvantaged people and can make privileged people more compassionate.
Dr. Kelly Moore Honored by Graduate School

Dr. Kelly Moore (right, shown with Dr. Patricia Mooney-Melvin) was honored as the Graduate Faculty Member of the Year "in recognition of outstanding service, teaching and scholarship".

Kudos and Announcements

Dana Garbarski and her colleagues published “How Respondents Report Their Health Status: Cognitive Interviews of Self-Rated Health Across Race, Ethnicity, Gender, and Educational Attainment” in BMC Public Health.

Dana Garbarski, undergrad alumna Kerryann DiLoreto, and their colleagues published “Factors Associated with Participation in the Collection of Saliva Samples by Mail in a Survey of Older Adults” in Public Opinion Quarterly.

Dana Garbarski presented a series of studies with colleagues on "Examining the Validity of Interviewers’ Ratings of Respondents’ Health" at the annual meetings for the Population Association of America (April 2017), American Association for Public Opinion Research (May 2017), American Sociological Association (August 2017), and at the Understanding Society Scientific Conference at the University of Essex (July 2017). Dana Garbarski was a co-author on other presentations at each of these annual meetings as well.

Lauren Langman co-edited the book, Piketty, Inequality and 21st Century Capitalism (Brill, 2017). Most of the book chapters critique Piketty from the perspective of critical theory, global political economy or public sociology, drawing on the work of Karl Marx or the Marxist tradition.

Lauren Langman participated in Open University of the Left, a program hosted by the Lincoln Park Library.

Dr. Langman discussed his book God, Guns, Gold & Glory (Brill, 2016) and was mentioned by the Chicago Reader in an article they wrote about the program.

Kathleen Maas Weigert has been invited to join the Justice Education Committee for the Archdiocesan Office of Human Dignity and Solidarity.

Kathleen Maas Weigert moderated a panel in honor of Catholic Charities 100th Anniversary. The panel included community leaders from healthcare, education, and criminal justice sectors who spoke on how we can work together to build more peaceful communities.

Peter Rosenblatt gave the opening plenary at the Wisconsin Home for Everyone conference, a two-day meeting for policy practitioners and fair housing advocates. The talk, entitled “Take a Chance on Me: The Use of Security Deposit Assistance among Low-Income Residents in Milwaukee” was based on research he and Loyola graduate student Jennifer Cossyleon did in Milwaukee, examining the challenges Housing Choice Voucher users faced in trying to use a new incentive program.

Peter Rosenblatt, in conjunction with the Center for Urban Research and Learning (CURL), received a $12,000 planning grant from a local Chicago non-profit, Business and Professional People for the Public Interest (BPI) to design a housing mobility demonstration in Chicago and Cook County. The primary aim of the demonstration is to test whether the combination of housing vouchers, search assistance, and two-generation social services will enable families to move to and stay in low-poverty, non-segregated neighborhoods with high quality schools, and to see whether this helps children improve their educational trajectories.

Rhys Williams made a presentation in the August ASA meetings in Montreal, at a session sponsored jointed by the American Sociological Association and the Association for the Sociology of Religion. His paper was titled, “‘Civil Religion and the Crisis in American National Identity.”

Rhys Williams was elected to the Council of the American Sociological Association.

Lauren Langman Receives Lifetime Achievement Award

Lauren Langman was awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award by the American Sociological Association (ASA) section on Marxist Sociology. He was recognized for his distinguished career achievement in Marxist sociology.

Social Movements in the U.S.: Lessons Learned

Drs. Rhys Williams and Matthew Williams participated in a panel discussion

During the panel Social Movements in the U.S.: Lessons Learned, held April 6, Drs. Rhys Williams and Matthew Williams joined two other Loyola faculty members as they looked back to U.S. and international history to offer up a few key points. Topics included the role of allies in organized movements, the positive and negative benefits of today’s technology, and past mistakes we can learn from today.

“One mistake that social movements have sometimes made is not having a clearly defined goal”, said Rhys Williams. He also stated that “one of the things I learned early in my career teaching sociology is you can respond to every single question with, ‘it depends. I’m going to take the opportunity here to say: When it comes to mistakes, it kind of depends on what was hoped to gain in the first place.” He went on to say “That goal could be educating people on an issue or getting a specific outcome or change made.

Matthew Williams considered it a matter of perspective: While some people may see activism a major part of their life and community, many want to return to their normal day-to-day lives after a small win. “So there is a question of how do you keep people engaged over the long run?” he added. “I think part of that is having a strong inclusive, inviting culture in a social movement—not just as diverse and democratic—but where is the real sense of community?”
David Van Zytveld Named Director of CURL

David Van Zytveld (Socl MA-1998) has been named the new Director of CURL (Center for Urban Research & Learning). David has been with CURL since it founding in 1996. He has had several positions at CURL over the years, including being Interim Director for the last 14 months.

Phil Nyden Retirement Party

Dr. Phil Nyden’s retirement party was held at Piper Hall. The attendees included current and former students, colleagues and community members. They came to honor Dr. Nyden for his 37 years of service to Loyola and 20 years as director of CURL (Center for Urban Research & Learning).

Phil Nyden reflects on his years at Loyola.

Hello,

As the new Graduate Program Director, I’m grateful to Kelly Moore, the previous GPD, for all her work to strengthen and enrich our program, to support our students, and to assist me. I hope to live up to the excellent precedent she has set!

We have an exceptionally able and active group of graduate students this year who have taken the initiative to plan events for the department, to mentor new students, to revive the undergraduate Sociology Club, and to help each other in their scholarship, teaching, and community engagement. They are creating a lively and warm intellectual community here.

Some of the events and news of the graduate program is summarized below, but this is a dynamic place, and many relevant announcements are communicated through the weekly email from the department and the weekly email from the Graduate School. Those of you who are current students, please be sure to regularly read those emails to keep up-to-date with opportunities available to you.

Alumni, we’re so glad that you keep in contact with us. Please do send us your news, visit us on campus, and send prospective students our way. If you are open to coming to campus to participate in a panel presentation about your profession, or to allow a current student to “shadow” you at work for a day, please let me know.

If you’re interested in joining our BA/MA, MA or PhD programs, contact me at mkrogh@luc.edu

Graduating MA Students celebrate their graduation with faculty

Steve Tuttle presenting at the UAA Conference

Quintin Williams with Congressman Bobby Rush at the Homeboy Industries Conference in Los Angeles

Alex Baker, MA Student and member of the LUC Cross Country Team
Greetings for fall 2017! The beginning weeks of the semester have been beautiful thus far, a nice welcome to the abundant numbers of new faces we have on campus. We have a growing number of new faces within sociology also, as our number of students minoring in sociology has increased significantly from just a year ago. Indeed, course enrollments, as well as our numbers of majors and minors, are strong.

A key event of the fall semester for our undergraduate program will be our Sociology Alumni Panel Discussion comprised of recent graduates from Loyola who were sociology majors. Collectively, they will be discussing their career trajectories post-graduation and offer first-hand accounts of the range of potential pathways one can follow. More details about this important event will be forthcoming (see the Sakai project site for majors and minors), but the date, time, and location are set: 12:00pm Monday, October 30th in McCormick Lounge of Coffey Hall. Don’t miss it!

Registration for spring courses will begin on Nov 6th. I will be making visits to a number of our current courses to make announcements concerning spring course offerings in our department and answer any questions people may have about planning. In addition, we will be having a day of an “Advising Open House” on Monday, October 3rd. Between 9-11am faculty will be at a table in Damen Student Center, and then you can find us in Coffey Hall 425 later in the day, time TBA. You can stop by at any point during these windows of time to ask questions, get permissions for SOCL 365 signed, and discuss career options with faculty. Please mark your calendars and make a point to drop by during our Advising Open House on Oct 30th.

I would also like to advise those of you early in the process of fulfilling your sociology major requirements to take a close look at our other 100-level courses, our “second tier core” courses. These courses count towards the major, are usually smaller in size than 101 sections, go more in-depth on particular substantive topics in sociology, and offer opportunities for closer faculty interaction in the context of a class. These classes cover topics of broad interest including: race and ethnicity (SOCL 122), mass media (SOCL 123), urban sociology (SOCL 125), religion (SOCL 145), sex and gender (SOCL 171). Moreover, each of these classes equip students with a broad basis on substantive topics you are likely to engage in subsequent elective courses.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions about undergraduate program in sociology, and best wishes for an engaging and productive fall semester!

Addison Mauck, Mitchell Strzepek, Shayna Vaughn were all initiated into the Maroon & Gold Society. The Society recognizes rising seniors who have demonstrated a commitment to leadership, academic excellence and service to others.

Natasha Slavin received the Social Justice Research Fellowship for the current academic year. Natasha’s project is titled “Online Sugar Babies & the Question of Agency”. She is mentored by Dr. Elise Martel Cohen.
Undergraduate and graduate students, many with family members, along with faculty and staff, celebrated the end of the academic year at our annual Awards Ceremony and Reception, May 4th. We had 36 graduating Sociology majors, and 12 Sociology/Anthropology majors.

This year twelve new members were inducted into Alpha Kappa Delta, the international sociology honor society. Membership is open to students who are at least juniors, have an overall GPA of 3.4, a 3.6 GPA in Sociology, and have completed five or more Sociology courses. Ten graduating seniors were presented with their AKD honors cords, which were worn proudly at graduation ceremonies in May.

Departmental honors, available to students who achieve a 3.4 grade point average overall and in their major and: either write a satisfactory Honor’s Thesis under the supervision of a faculty member in Sociology 365 or take two graduate courses in the Sociology program (as electives toward their undergraduate major) and receive a grade of B or better were bestowed upon:

- Reeti Goyal
- Laura Hillebrand
- Arissa Koines
- Margaret Meagher
- Catherine Montgomery

Conversations in Black & White
By Carolyn D Dallas, BA 1975
Irvin L Dallas BBA, 1975

Carolyn Dallas graduated from Loyola in 1973, with a BA degree, in Sociology. Her husband graduated in 1973 with a degree in Business. They lived in Boston, D.C. and recently moved to Richmond VA. They are leaders in their local community and church that involves working towards racial harmony and reconciliation, which the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia has asked churches to focus on. Below is an article about their work. Carolyn stated that “over the years I have discovered that my education at Loyola had a profound affect upon me especially regarding social justice and what God has called us to do in life, I have devoted close to thirty years of working with low income neighborhoods as an Executive Director providing all types of services to families and children, I consider myself a strong advocate for children and families.”

Conversations in Black and White began in the summer of 2015 at St John’s Episcopal Church in Richmond Virginia. It grew out of a conversation between myself (Carolyn) and a white parishioner about a racial incident in South Carolina at our weekly prayer group. I was lamenting to her about “if only we could begin a conversation about these difficult issues that we could understand each other’s perspective much better”. From that conversation, a meeting with the Rector and a planning committee that included Irvin was formed. The goal was to have monthly pot luck suppers with a discussion around a theme, which could be an article from the newspaper, a particular book, or articles from authors in the field discussing a particular subject as it relates to race. From each presentation, questions are developed and each person gets to share their thoughts. It is an opportunity for everyone especially blacks and whites, to have meaningful conversations about difficult subject matters regarding race, to express feelings, and to gain a better understanding and perspective by listening to different experiences. It is trying to learn who we are, as it relates to race, how we operate and why we operate as we do. It is learning how to live in harmony with each other and respectful of each other’s life and experiences. It is the seeing God in a person of another race, understanding who they are, how they have come to exist and how they operate within God’s community. The program provides a safe environment and a safe space to talk. It encourages participants to live in harmony with each other and to be respectful of each other’s life and experiences. Our baptismal vows form the backbone of Conversations in Black & White. During Baptism, we pledge to strive for justice and peace among all people and respect the dignity of every human being as well as loving others as God loved us. All of this we pledge to do with God’s help. It is whites looking at blacks and forever wondering if blacks were afforded those same privileges such as access to the GI Bill as whites were afforded, how would that have benefitted black lives and economic status in the community and in the world today. It is whites understanding why blacks always insist upon a receipt when purchasing items in a store, or blacks being followed in a store and what this does to our sense of self-worth. It is the need for blacks to continue to share our stories no matter how painful or embarrassing as it helps us become stronger. It is blacks learning that whites are capable of understanding our story and experiences, can understand our anger and frustration and can acknowledge that these real experiences have affected our lives sometimes in a negative manner. It is when both races can share these experiences and know that they will forever be changed as to how they see each other and the world. Sometimes it is very difficult to step outside the box and put ourselves in someone else’s shoes. Once understood and accepted, the challenge is what can I do as a person of faith to understand, promote change and make an impact!
