Biographical History

Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz was born and raised in La Habana, Cuba. The third of six sisters and two brothers, she received her primary and secondary school education at Merci Academy, a school run by nuns of the Order of St. Ursula. Raised in a practicing Catholic home, from early on she had a concern for the poor and oppressed and a love of religious practices. Ada Maria especially learned from her mother the importance of struggling (la lucha) for what one believes without ever giving up.

Ada Maria left Cuba in 1960 and became a political refugee. Living in the United States, she entered the convent (the Order of St. Ursula) and went to college to earn a BA in European History from the College of New Rochelle in New York. In January of 1967 she went to Lima, Peru as a missionary. The three years of living there was an experience that had a profound effect on the rest of her life. In Peru, she interacted with the poor and learned the importance of justice. Ada Maria returned to the United States in December of 1969, teaching high school in Louisiana. Ada Maria then taught high school in Spain, and later returned to the United States and settled in Rochester, NY

Ada Maria attended the first Women's Ordination Conference in Detroit, Michigan on Thanksgiving weekend 1975 and it was then that she became involved in the feminist movement. She realized that oppression was not only caused by poverty but also as a result of sexism. For seven years she participated in the women's movement focusing on oppression in churches, religion, and theology. In 1983 she began to pursue a Master of Divinity at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, where she also completed her PhD with a concentration in Christian Ethics in 1990. In 1991 she began teaching at the Theological and Graduate Schools of Drew University where she founded a Hispanic Institute of Theology. There she was given the opportunity to speak to women throughout the world and to continue to elaborate Mujerista Theology.

Ada Maria always longed to return to Cuba. From 1997-2004 she was able to return annually to participate in workshops, give lectures, teach at the Protestant seminary, work in a Catholic parish helping to prepare for baptisms, and conducting Bible studies. After 2004, she was unable to return due to travel restrictions. At the age of 69, Ada Maria died on May 13, 2012 after a battle with cancer.

Scope and Content

The Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz collection consists of 4.25 linear feet (9 boxes) and contains published and unpublished materials that relate to her interests in feminist theology and social justice. Included are books, professional journals, articles, newspapers, pamphlets, booklets, and bulletins. There is only one series, as the collection is entirely subject files, and it is arranged alphabetically by subject and title.

Series 1: Subject Files, 1974-2005, undated, Boxes 1-9

Contains materials relating to subjects that were of interest to Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz. These subjects relate mainly to feminism, and more specifically deal with feminist theology, liberation theology, and global issues of social justice and poverty. This collection also contains several Spanish language documents that are not translated into English.
